Valeria Duflot [1]

Co-Founder, Venezia Autentica
Italy

Valeria Duflot is on a mission to create solutions to our biggest challenges and empower others to make an impact.

She is a social and systems entrepreneur with 10+ years of experience currently focused on advancing the SDGs and transforming tourism both at the community level and at scale. She is the co-founder of the award-winning social enterprise Venezia Autentica [2], Overtourism Solution [3], and the upcoming collective systems change initiative Tourism Allies [4].

Valeria's work and herself have been featured on CNN, BBC, Forbes and she is a regular speaker at leading international events on the topic of sustainability, travel and social innovation.

Valeria is also a coach and educator for (future) impactful teams and founders. She works directly with (future) leaders or in partnerships with organisations such as Ashoka, The European Commission, the UN, TBS Business School, Wake Forest University, etc.

Valeria is a community and ecosystem builder who has (helped) build communities wherever she's lived in France, India or Italy. She is a board member of Catalyst 2030, founding co-chair of the Europe Chapter and an EU SEW ambassador. Valeria is also the founding chair of an upcoming collective focused on fostering equity and coexistence.

Valeria has received academic training in sciences and business and executive training in social innovation. She is an avid learner, constantly developing her knowledge and skills in both professional and personal matters. Because Valeria has been living with migraine since she was 12 and has a deep love and admiration for nature, she places empathy and the wellbeing of people and our planet at the core of all she does. Valeria is from a French and Malagasy family; she lives in Venice, Italy, after several years spent in Bangalore, India.
